

Shared by CZBinance on twitter. We have had different viewpoints on a few occasions, but I agree here. <https://www.coindesk.com/layer2/2022/04/28/how-western-sanctions-on-russia-could-make-crypto-an-international-reserve-currency/>.

Key takeaways:

-Problem; It doesn't take Nostradamus to see what's taking shape. Once major players like Russia, China and India align, it's only a matter of time before smaller countries are pressured to fall in line.

-Solution; It's also easy to see how smaller, less powerful states would be interested in a third option – a neutral reserve currency and payment system that's immune to weaponization. Suddenly they would no longer be at the financial mercy of global powers.

-Question; How to ensure a neutral reserve currency remains neutral when pressure is applied?
